Notes and corrections

The question-setting quidelines state: "Errors can be found in any book/website: never write a question using information from a single source. Many websites contain downloadable questions; tempting though it may be, do not plagiarise these: not only do they often contain mistakes...".

If question setters choose to ignore this advice and insist on taking their questions from a single source (www.quiz-zone.co.uk, for example), it is advisable to check with different sources that the answers are correct.

- 1 'Subscriber identification module' is an equally acceptable answer.
- There are four other equally acceptable answers to this question: super bantamweight (also known as junior featherweight) and super featherweight (also known as junior lightweight).
- 3 The camp opened on 11 April 1936.
- 4 Max Factor was born in Poland in 1872.
- This question has several, equally acceptable answers. In addition to wisdom, Minerva was also goddess of: war; the arts and crafts; commerce, industry and trade; poetry; medicine; weaving and magic.

- 6 There is no set volume for a flagon.
- 7 Hayes held office from 1877 to 1881, not 1887 to 1891.
- 8 Women first competed (in golf and tennis) at the 1900 Games in Paris.
- 9 Two rivers flow through Philadelphia: the Delaware and the Schuylkill
- 10 The building was re-named in March 2009 and is now known as The Willis Tower.
- 11 Intel takes its name from a contraction of Integrated Electronics
- 12 A goal is worth six points, not five.
